

Martin has been working as a software developer with the Internet Publishing Service of Wycliffe Bible Translators since 2008. He is currently the lead software developer, part time. His team enables translation teams to create Bible websites in minority languages. Later this year he plans to move to a different Wycliffe project.

Update provided 11/7/2024